NOTE FROM THE DIRECTOR

Since Lewis Carroll first wrote Alice in Wonderland in 1865, there have been many versions of his story that open with Alice sitting by a river reading a book when a white rabbit runs by and she follows him down a rabbit hole. It's funny that the phrase "rabbit hole" has come to represent a negative emotional state, "oh I went down the rabbit hole again," indicating perhaps a repeat of some unhealthy behavior or negative thinking pattern. Alice's journey through the rabbit hole into wonderland, is her journey into her own mind and imagination, which isn't always pretty. She is met and challenged by the Cheshire Cat, the Caterpillar, and the Mad Hatter - who confront her with the ultimate question that plagues humankind - Who am I?

Our version begins in a modern day classroom with Alice asleep at her desk until a clique of "mean girls/boys" abruptly wake her, then walk away to recite the Jabberwocky poem. As the poem is performed, the rabbit hole swirls around Alice and the classroom slowly transforms into Wonderland, where the bullies become the Queen of Hearts, the King, the Knave and the Duchess, who challenge Alice to become a "queen herself" by facing her doubts and fears and crossing the chessboard.

Our designing team ran with this classroom idea and collaborated to create a quirky set of bookshelves inspired by the Montreal-based company, Tout a Trac, who set Alice in Wonderland in a library full of pop-up books. In addition to the bookshelves our set has several letter blocks that rotate with the scenes. The motifs contained in the set include the alphabet, children's rhymes, riddles, games, playing cards, chess boards - and hopefully encourage us to question if life is a puzzle to be solved, a chessboard to be crossed or a game to be played. Answer as you will, and enjoy the show!

THEATRE ETIQUETTE

What most people don't realize is that whether you are on stage or viewing the show, YOU are part of the performance. Theatre is not theatre without an audience. Theatre is NOT just what's happening on the stage, it's the combined energies of actors, technicians and audience. Theatre is truly magic: an art form created out of the energy flowing between people in a dark room, on both sides of the curtain.

For an actor on stage, one of the most disheartening things that can happen is to come out for the curtain call and see people heading for the exits. The act of staying in your seat to show your appreciation for what you've just seen is an important part of the art form.

Coming late is inappropriate. Latecomers not only affect the performers on stage, they also annoy the other audience members.

Eating or drinking during the performance is inappropriate. The unwrapping of candy, or any item, no matter how quiet you try to be, will be heard by the actors and audience. This is an auditorium where we state no food or drink is allowed in the auditorium, please respect that.

The use of ANY form of photography or video is NEVER appropriate. Flash & video lights in a performer's eyes can be dangerous. Flashes disrupt the lighting effects & the pleasure of other audience members who came to the show. Your flashes were not included in the Lighting Designer's hard work so please don't add your own effects. Your screen while taking video & photographs disturb the technical crew as well as the audience around & in back of you who paid to see a live performance on stage, not a tiny screen in your hand.

Talking, making comments, & calling out to the performers during the performance, are inappropriate.

Any use of your cell phone during the performance is inappropriate. If it chirps, rings, beeps, whistles or texts, turn it off.

Applause is always appropriate - in the right places. - Thank you!

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Theatre is a collaborative endeavor and we could not do it without the help and generosity of so many. The Production Team would like to thank the following: Nicole Krulik and the Urban Art & Communication Class, Jen Dahl, WOHS Drama Boosters, Michael Housel and the WOHS Custodial Staff, Lou Quagliato; Visual and Performing Arts Supervisor, the WOHS Administration and the WOPS Administration
